

them from the said charge, if the Library Company shall not submit and conform to such control and direction.

Fifth. If at any time Mr. Thomas Craven should take out letters testamentary to my estate, I will and direct that the amount of the annuity heretofore given him shall be credited to my estate, and deducted from the commissions to which he will be by law annually entitled; and if those annual commissions should not equal the amount of such annuity, it shall be taken and considered as full payment thereof.

Sixth. I desire to express still more emphatically than I have yet done my wish and direction that the Library Company shall never make any efforts to rival the other libraries of America or of Europe in the mere number of volumes they contain. If the amount of books in the Philadelphia Library is simply recorded in its catalogue, it will be sufficient for every useful purpose; and whatever its number may be, it need not be held in the gloom of discontent at its inferiority to others, nor in a prideful exultation at its excess above them. Let it rest in a modest contentment in the useful quality of its volumes for the benefit, not the amusement alone of the public, nor let it over an ambitious store of inferior printed paper, flap its flimsy leaves, and crow out the highest number of worthless books. Let it be a favor for the eminent works of fiction to be found upon the shelves; but let it not keep cushioned seats for time-wasting and lounging readers, nor places for every-day novels, mind-
