To the Directors of the Philadelphia Library Company
Gentlemen

The most of us have been your tenants for a great number of years.
For the last year or two we have been paying a largely increased rent and Mr Smith has intimated to us that you have instructed him to make still further advances.

We wish respectfully to suggest to you that the present rental of the Law Building is quite as high as the average rental for corresponding accommodations in the neighborhood; and as high we think as can be paid by any Attornies or conveyancers, who confine themselves to a strictly legitimate business.

We have no doubt but that for some other purposes, adventurous strangers could be found who would promise to pay more than we are paying, but whether giving the Law Building up to such strange uses would in the long run add to your aggregate income from the building, we think you will doubt.

We have no desire to sever our existing connection with you and we are confident that you are not of
