

Rebel Gunboat Breckinridge. Vanner—Commander Boggs. Governor Moore, Beverly Keannon Commander.

DESPERATE ENGAGEMENT, APRIL 24, BETWEEN THE U. S. SUNDRA, VANNER, COMMANDER BOGGS, AND THE REBEL STEAM RAM J. C. BRECKINRIDGE, AND THE REBEL GUNBOAT GOVERNOR MOORE
 FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST, MR. WM. WAUGH.—SEE PAGE 194.

CLOSED AT LAST.—The Refreshment Saloons are now closed—let us hope for ever. Their history is part of the history of the war, and in the annals of the nation, their founders have immortalized themselves. From the small beginning of a few warm friendly hearts sprung these refreshment saloons that have most beneficently entertained very little less than a million of men going and returning from the theatre of war. At the Academy meeting to do justice, will be held a grand public meeting to do justice. It will be free to all. Distinguished speakers will be present and the occasion is to be rendered memorable in the records. Reports of the operations of both the Cooper's Shop and Volunteer Saloons will be read.

THE REFRESHMENT SALOONS.—We are desired to say that owing to the rush for tickets at the closing ceremonies of the Refreshment Saloons, which take place at the Academy of Music to-night, it is hoped by those having the matter in charge, that all who have tickets for reserved seats in their possession will either employ them themselves or so distribute them that they may be saved by those who are anxious to be present. It is desired that the room shall not be partially unoccupied when the occurrences are of so much interest and when there are so many who are desirous of being in attendance.

THE BATTLES AT CHANCELLORSVILLE—SECOND AND THIRD CORPS REPELLING JACKSON'S ASSAULT, MAY 3.—FROM A SKETCH BY MR. A. B. WADE.—[SEE PAGE 331.]

GENERAL HOOKER'S HEAD-QUARTERS IN THE FIELD.—SKETCHED BY MR. A. R. WAUD.—[SEE PAGE 351.]

5779.743.b