

The first that is mentioned in the catalogue is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Paris" which was founded in 1551 by Henry II. The second is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Bordeaux" which was founded in 1563 by Henry III. The third is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Rouen" which was founded in 1574 by Henry III. The fourth is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Lyon" which was founded in 1578 by Henry III. The fifth is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Metz" which was founded in 1580 by Henry III. The sixth is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Nancy" which was founded in 1585 by Henry III. The seventh is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Strasbourg" which was founded in 1586 by Henry III. The eighth is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Toul" which was founded in 1587 by Henry III. The ninth is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Verdun" which was founded in 1588 by Henry III. The tenth is the "Bibliothèque de la ville de Reims" which was founded in 1589 by Henry III.

The more I reflect on the subject of the late Mr. [Name] the more I am convinced that his conduct was perfectly correct and that he was a man of great worth and
 high character.