Philadelphia April 11th 1879.
To the Trustees of the Loganian Library.
Gentlemen.

Having been engaged in rebinding the books for the Library, and understanding that there is not an entire agreement in relation to the propriety of some of the matters connected with the execution of the work, We beg leave therefore in justice to ourselves, and to the high Trust with which you are charged, to submit the following for your consideration

We received the directions for the restoration of the bindings through the regular channel reinforced by the personal instructions of J. Jay Smith Esqr. of the Board of Trustees, and it is but just to those who gave the orders to remark that they no more than ourselves could at that time form a correct judgment of the amount of time and labour that would be required to put the books in good condition, for it was
