so many required special treatment, that in the adjustment of the price to each book, and in our desire to keep the aggregate cost as low as possible we ourselves were in doubt as to how we would come out when the work was completed, and we made up our Annual Statement of the year's business in the early part of this year, as usual, and then realized that the work of restoring the bindings of the Loganian Library, forming a large part of our last year's work, had not at the prices we had charged proved to be a profitable undertaking. This statement of our year's business we will with pleasure lay before you, or a Committee of your body, for we wish you to be assured that we have not abused the confidence that has been reposed in us, but that the work has been honestly, and economically done.

The whole collection has been removed from the old to the new building at our expense for which we made no charge, and we have
