

its middle or neutral State, and its Ruin and Downfal in the West, from the Monarchy of Constantine the Great to the taking of Rome by Odoacer King of the Heruli, and the erecting of a Kingdom of Barbarians in Italy. With an Account of the Polity of the Empire, and of the several Laws of Moment made, during the Reigns of the Emperors, both in East and West, to this Period. The second Volume containing that of the Roman Empire, its first countenancing and receiving the Christian Religion; from the Conversion of Constantine the Great, to the Fall of Augustulus, and the Ruin of the Empire in the West. With an Account of the Polity of the Church, and the several Laws and Canons of Moment made during the Reign of the Emperors both in East and West, to this Period. By William Howell, L. L. D. 3 Vols. London, 1685.

104. Wood's Institutes of the Laws of England; published (in their natural Order, according to the common Use) for the Direction of young Beginners, or Students in the Law, and of others who desire to have a general Knowledge in our Common and Statute Laws. 1728.

105. The Pleas of the Crown. By William Hawkins, Serjeant at Law; being a System of the principal Matters relating to that Subject, digested under proper Heads. 3d Edition, 1739.

106. The History of the Pleas of the Crown; by Sir Matthew Hale, Knt. Lord Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench. Now first published from his Lordship's original Manuscript; and the several References to the Records examined by the Originals: With large Notes by Sollom Emlyn, of Lincoln's-Inn, Esq; To which is added a Table of the principal Matters. 2 Vols. London, 1736.

107. A new Institute of the Imperial or Civil Law; with Notes and Observations how the Laws of England and other Nations, and the Canon Law differ from it. 4th Edition corrected. By Thomas Wood, L. L. D. to which is prefixed a Treatise of the first Principles, Nature and Design of Laws in general, and their Interpretation. London, 1730.

108. The Civil Law in its natural Order; together with the publick Law. Written in French by Mons. Domat, the late French King's Advocate in the Presidial Court of Clermont in France. Translated into English by William Strahan, L. L. D. With additional Remarks on some material

C

terial

