We have brought our book to a close, and have done our duty to the public in giving a true and correct description of all the principal houses of pleasure in the city, with the exception of some places of abominable notoriety, which we neither examined or will attempt a description of. So long as gay houses are tolerated, (and that must be ad finem temporis,) so long a Guide Book will be indispensable, and must be useful to point out to the stranger and the green one those places that may be visited with safety, and to avoid those horrible dens where he will surely be bled and burnt.

In Such Street, show Eighth there is a motified occusied by a system of scilow wide, who promende an and down Obesian Street or the evening with their faces well providered, and share for the evening with their faces and providered with the rade of president of their factors of the state in the trade of president of the factors of the state, however, and we have no objection to a white man hagging a test wench to his boson, providing his stomach is strong enough to religh the minister.
