That every Entry is no Disseisin, unless there be an Duster also of the Freehold.

And therefore Littleton doth not set down an Entry only, but an Duster also, as an Entry and a Claimer, or Taking of Profits, &c.

Now as there be Jointenants by Disseisin, so are there Jointenants by Abatement, Intrusion, and Usurpation, all which are included in the latter &c.

Points of Learning are to be observed, as that it is proper to Jointenants only to have Lands by Survivorship; for no Survivor of other Tenants pro indiviso shall have the whole by Survivorship, but only Jointenants, and this is called in Law, Jus accrescendi. Braet. lib. 4. fo. 262. b.

But although Survivorship be proper to Jointenants, yet it is not proper quarto modo (that is) omni, soli & semper; for there may be Jointenants,
