

The CONTENTS.

The Derivation and Signification of the Word Tallage ,	Page 67
Signification of the Word Maletor ,	ibid.
The Occasion of making the Statute De Tallagio non concedendo ,	67.
Dr. Heylin's Account of the before-mentioned Statutes,	ibid. and 68
That tis true, that the Kings of England have taxed their Tenants in Antient Demesne without their Consent in Parliirment ; but that was not a general Tax on the People,	71
Of Tenants in Capite , and that those Tenants taxed themselves out of Parliament,	72
My Lord Coke's Account of the making of the Statute De Tallagio non concedendo ,	73
Of Ship-Money ,	74
Of Tonnage and Poundage ,	75
The Statute 25 Ed. 3. declaring what Offences shall be adjudged Treason, and the Comment upon it,	75 to 93
The Derivation of the Word Treason , and the several Sorts of it,	78, 79
To compass the Death of the King, what,	79
What is intended by the Word King ,	ibid.
A Collateral Heir to the Crown is not within this Statute,	80
Probably attainted, an Error in the Statute-Book for Provable attainted,	ibid. and 81
Of Treason by levying of War,	84
Of interpretative Treasons,	85
Of counterfeiting the Great or Privy Seal,	86
Of Treasons relating to the Coin ,	87
The	