

But:

the lady on ^{Page 28}, who had followed Jag through Czech-Slovakia, religiously sweeping all her gentlemen friends, came to Rome.

Just caught them spooning in the colosseum one dark cold night.

Janet got spasmodic convulsions of the epiglottis combined with hysteria of the thyroid brought on from grief and walking in the cold & damp colosseum the night before.

The count came to see her and she looked so sweet in her little white bed that he realized that her peculiar ruddy style of beauty was more lovely than our friend on PAGE 23's icy pallor. They made up and
