

ABOUT THE LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA

The Library Company was founded in 1731 by Benjamin Franklin and is the nation's oldest cultural institution. Now an independent research library, its 500,000 books, 160,000 manuscripts, and 100,000 prints and photographs comprise the best collection of printed source material in the mid-Atlantic region on every aspect of American history and culture from the early colonial period to the 1900.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jack P. Greene, Andrew W. Mellon Professor in the Humanities at The Johns Hopkins University, was educated at the University of North Carolina (A.B., 1951), Indiana University (M.A., 1952), and Duke University (Ph.D., 1956). Before joining the faculty of Johns Hopkins in 1966, he taught at Michigan State University, Western Reserve University, and the University of Michigan. Professor Greene has held Fulbright and Guggenheim Fellowships and is the author of numerous books, among them The Quest for Power: The Lower Houses of Assembly in the Southern Royal Colonies, 1689–1776 (Chapel Hill, 1963), and Peripheries and Center: Constitutional Development in the Extended Politics of the British Empire and the United States, 1607–1788 (Athens, Ga., 1986), and a companion to this publication entitled, A Bicentennial Bookshelf: Historians Analyze the Constitutional Era (Philadelphia, 1986).
