

Dedication.—The church of the Redeemer, corner of Swanson and Catharine streets, was consecrated yesterday morning, with appropriate ceremonies, by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Potter. This is the church erected for the accommodation of seamen, and which was opened for the first time on Sunday, Dec. 20th, 1857.

85-1577

S. D. BUTTON. ARCHITECT.

J. B. NEAGLE. ENGRAVER.

Sharpless' new store on the N.W. cor. of Chestnut and Eighth street—(Butler property).—
Built during the summer of 1857—first opened

The Butler Hotel.—The Butler Hotel Company have elected officers for the ensuing year. The Treasurer reports a balance of $5704 in the Treasury. The whole cost of the lot at the corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets, was $355,183-50. $42,500 of the amount subscribed has been paid in.—The work has been temporarily suspended, but the managers say it will be resumed as soon as one hundred shares additional are subscribed for.

Levied Upon.—Yesterday, notices upon the front walls of the new granite building of the Pennsylvania Bank, in Chestnut street, drew the attention of groups of people. They set forth that the banking house had been levied upon to secure the payment of an aggregate sum of more than $16,000, due Messrs. Wood & Perot, and Morris, Tasker & Morris, for labor done and materials furnished for the building.

KNEELER.—"Can any of your readers inform us whether any of Wertmüller's paintings were sold in Philadelphia, and if so, in what year?".....The "Dance" of this artist was a long time at Guy's tavern, in Seventh street. As Wertmüller lived in this city for some time, it is probable that others of his paintings are among us. Our correspondent knows, of course, that a portrait of Washington from Wertmüller's pencil is the engraved frontispiece to the first volume of Irving's Life of Washington. The original was painted in this city in 1796. In the Directory for 1802 appears "Adolph Wertmüller, artist, Filbert street." In 1803 he was at 20 North Ninth street.

-DAILY 6-58-

-58-27-58-

-DAILY 15-58-