24. A new Histroy of the World Containing an Historical and Chronological Account of the Times and Transactions from the Creation. to the Birth of our Lord Christ, according to the Computation of the Septuagint, which the Author manifestly shews to be that of the antient Hebrew Copy of the Bible. Together with Chronological Tables at the End of each Age, in which the Lives of the Patriarchs after the Deluge, the Reigns of the Rulers and Kings of the Children of Ifrael and Juda, are paralleled (and agree exactly) with those of the Affirian, Babylonian, Persian, Grecian Kings and Roman Emperors: By Means whereof all the Objections and Cavils of our Modern Libertines, Deifts, Atheists and Pre-Adamites, who grounding their Arguments and Reasonings upon the Computation of the present Hebrew Text, make the first Kings of the Affyrian, Babylonian and Egyptian Monarchies to have reign'd some Hundreds of Years before the Deluge, are clearly confuted. By Cornelius Nary, C. F. P. Dr. Dublin, 1729.
