This is to certify that Minnie Harris did what he cousin Will Harris in a most shocking manner
- that he is very much disgusted with dressmakers in general & Minnie in particular. That he would be glad to receive a letter & picture from his dear cousin but supposes he will get neither - That he has lots of work on hand or would write a decent letter. That with all her faults he loves her still. That he wishes to scold her but don't know how - Gordon - lots of love - Will

OFF ON THEIR WEDDING TOURS
The Young Men...
Holy Trinity Church 3 1/2 o'clock last evening was crowded to the doors by an assemblage rarely seen in the sacred edifice, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Adelaide Watson, of 1113 Spruce street, to Mr. Ernest Foster, son of General Foster, of General U. S. Grant's staff. The altar on either side was beautifully decorated with ferns and hot house plants, and the perfume of out-flowers delightfully scented the atmosphere.
At 4 o'clock the bride entered the church, accompanied by her father, and in the inspiring strains of the Lutheran hymn walked slowly to the altar, where she was met by her groom, accompanied by his best man, William F. Timmer.
Dressed in a pretty wedding costume of white satin, with old point lace and pearl and diamond decorations, the bride joined hands with her future companion in life, and over the handsome couple Rev. Dr. W. K. McVicar, of the Principal Church, read the opening prayer, and the divine solemnly pledged the young people to the better, do worse, while the organ poured out its gentle strains. The young people were the center of the eyes of the multitude in the church as they stood down the aisle, followed by the bridesmaids and ushers, made of William F. Timmer, ushers, who were all class mates of the groom at college at Princeton.
The bridesmaids were Misses: J. Parker Wood, Thomas Meyer, George W. Wood, of New York; R. F. Bradford, Robert Robinson, R. W. Evans and Clarence Halstead, son of Marcus Halstead, of the Commercial-Graphic, of Cincinnati. The maid of honor was Miss Edith Foster, and the best maids were Miss Florence Pullman, of Chicago; Miss Minnie Harris, Miss Alice Nelson, Miss Frances Parr, Miss Annie Wilson and Miss Catharine George.
After the customary carriage, which were provided against the slight shower, quickly married the bride and groom to their guests in the home of the bride and the scene of the reception. Among the invited ones were General and Mrs. Foster and the ladies' sister, Mrs. McKim, of New York; Mrs. George M. Pullman and her two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Childs, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Foster of New York; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey, son of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Carr, Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison, Miss Edith Wood, A. J. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. J. Van Arman, Mrs. Samuel Childs, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wood, George Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Foster, Henry Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Howell and others.
After the wedding reception the groom started on a secret wedding tour with his bride, their parents and their friends.
